

Reignite your passion for teaching

Want to make your clinical teaching more efficient and effective? Come join us for INTAPT.

In two, five-day sessions you'll learn practical applications of educational theory designed specifically for clinicians in teacher and educator roles. Come away with new ideas for improving the delivery of clinical education programs.

You'll learn to:

- Integrate teaching and learning theory into practice
- Work with learners who are experiencing difficulties
- Give more effective feedback and use a range of assessment methods
- Create and run interactive workshops
- Present with confidence and impact

When and where:

Sessions are in person at DFCM,
500 University Ave,
Toronto M5G 1V7

Week 1: October 21–25, 2024
Week 2: February 24–28, 2025

Apply by September 15, 2024

Who can apply:

Practising clinicians from any discipline, including nurses, physicians, pharmacists, dentists, occupational therapists, physiotherapists, midwives, social workers, lab technologists, optometrists, and other health care practitioners. INTAPT is designed for both new and experienced teachers.

Testimonials

I came in thinking I would learn “how to teach” but instead I came out with a new outlook/approach to my career and self as a physician.

Some of the biggest takeaways are the importance of self-reflection and feedback, and how vital evaluations are. I feel much more confident in my abilities to instruct and create educational opportunities.

For more information and to register, visit dfcm.utoronto.ca/intapt.

Questions? Contact healthteach.grad@utoronto.ca.

Family & Community Medicine
UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO